

Das dünne Ergebnis von Doha – gut so!

Die großen CO₂-Erzeugerstaaten machen „Kyoto II“ nicht mit

Das sogenannte Kyoto-Protokoll wird immerhin bis 2020 verlängert, womit von 2013 an die zweite „Verpflichtungsperiode“ zum Einschränken von Kohlendioxid-Emissionen beginnt (Kyoto II). 37 der 193 „Kyoto-Staaten“ wollen ihre Emissionen bis 2020 weiter verringern, fallen mit ihrem Ausstoß aber global nicht ins Gewicht. Russland, Kanada, Japan und Neuseeland haben sich aus der zweiten Verpflichtungsperiode verabschiedet. Noch dabei sind Australien, die 27 EU-Staaten und einige weitere Länder. Sie alle zusammen sind aber an den globalen Emissionen mit nur noch rund 11 bis 13 Prozent beteiligt. Die großen CO₂-Emittenten USA und China haben schon Kyoto I nicht ratifiziert.
